

SITUATION TRIANGLE

Who?

What?

Where?

Situation: A house party, lots of cans of drinks like dragon soop and lots of 'punch' - you don't know what's in that. Lots of singles and couples, mostly aged 14-16. You notice a group arriving and you've heard that they get into fights.

Situation: Your mates ask you to meet them at the back of the shops on a Saturday night. You get passers by to buy as much cheap drink as possible before getting chased. The plan is to get bloated then hang out at the park.

Situation: You are outside the youth club. It is closed but you think some workers are still inside. A friend says they are really down because a relative has died. They say they are going to cut themselves.

Situation: Someone you've been seeing asks you to go with them to the woods. They tell you someone is after them but they're not scared because they have 'protection'. You don't think it's a good idea but you don't want them hurt.

Situation: At school a group from another area have been really mouthy. They are always saying things to wind up you and your mates. It's really bugging the life out of you. Your mates start saying it's time for it to stop!

Situation: A lot of online stuff has been building up. People are starting to mention 'tools' they have. You've never carried before but you're freaked out. If you don't carry, will your friends ditch you?

Situation: At your youth club the workers decide to bring two clubs together from different areas. You know that there are people in your club and the other club that can't stand the sight of each other. You're worried.

Situation: It's the end of term and a lot of people are talking about meeting up at the park. You know that means lots of drinking, maybe a bit of a party atmosphere, but with some people you know and some you don't.

Situation: The police have organised an under 18's night at a local club. You and your mates decide to meet for a drink before it starts. At the door the security guards tell you you're too drunk to get in, but your mates can enter.
